

What is the Fear that is Holding you Back?

by Charla Stilling

"I believe everybody deserves a career they love," says Becky Dieter, career coach and founder of Inspiring Greatness. "Inspiring Greatness is about exploring and creating options, making choices, staying within the realm of reality, and working toward discovering and achieving the career you love."

Becky, a wife and mother of two sons, began her career in human resources for a large computer engineering firm. However, her true desire was to work with and help people, which led her back to school. She obtained a law degree and practiced domestic law for six years before moving to Colorado in 1996. In an attempt to make the most of her career as an attorney, she went to work as in-house counsel for a national placement corporation but ultimately found herself lacking fulfillment.

Becky, understanding that her true passion centered on helping others, hired a coach and started her journey toward finding a fulfilling career. "I am a natural motivator and enjoy helping people grow." Due to her own journey, Becky has a unique ability to understand the fears and frustrations that her clients in a career transition are experiencing.

Do you need to make a change? Do you want to enter the workforce but lack the confidence to do it alone? Do you feel trapped doing what you "should" do instead of what you want to do? Do you have too many choices and need someone to help you narrow them down? What is the fear that is holding you back?

Becky is eager to assist and support you in your journey toward finding a career that honors your values, experience, education and dreams. She focuses on helping you become your own catalyst. She will work with you to brainstorm ideas, research information regarding fields that interest you, overcome apprehension and fear, develop self-confidence, clear away negative assumptions and bring your concept to life!

Inspiring Greatness offers a judgment-free environment customized for you and your needs, with coaching sessions by phone, periodic email updates and articles of interest.

"I provide a safe, trusting environment where you don't have to be afraid to ask for help and explore your dreams. My goal is to create an open forum, lay a foundation for confidence and create a path that is uniquely yours!"
